DETAILED ACTION

Summary

1. This is in response to an amendment/response filed on May 4th, 2010.
2. Claims 1, 7, 11, 15, and 20 have been amended.
3. Claim 14 has been cancelled.
4. No claims have been added.
5. Claims 1-2, 4-7, 9-13, 15, and 17-23 are allowed.

Reasons for Allowance

6. The following is the Examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

For independent claim 1, the prior art fails to show alone or in combination a system for providing frame rate conversion for audio data comprising a first client, a second client, and a voice-over-IP (VoIP) gateway to store the audio data frames from the first client in an intermediate storage area until at least a data size associated with the second frame rate is received from the first client. The audio data frames transmitted at the first frame rate have a first interval between the frames, wherein the audio data frames transmitted at the second frame rate have a second interval between the frames, and wherein the first interval and the second interval are constant, and wherein the total amount of audio data received by the second client in the one or more repackaged frames is equal to a total amount of audio data transmitted by the first client in the audio data.

The prior art of Biswas (U.S. Patent 6,847,313) discloses a multirate filter for digital signal processing. The multirate filter converts an input signal sampled at a first sampling rate to a output signal sampled at a second sampling rate. However, Biswas fails to disclose a voice-over-IP (VoIP) gateway that specifically receives audio data in a first protocol and converts the audio data to a second protocol and further stores the audio data frames from the first client in an intermediate storage area until at least a data size associated with the second frame rate is received from the first client.

For the reasons provided above, claim 1 is allowed. For similar reasons, independent claims 7, 11, 15, and 20 are allowed. The remaining dependent claims are allowable because they depend on the allowed independent claims.
